The Band

THE DIEMAKERS are a Rock Band pure and simple. Heavy, Psychedelic, Bluesy, and Soulful. Combining classic influences and a modern vibe into an original, gritty blend of Rock-n-Roll Freedom.

Motor City Sound

Legendary sound engineer Jim Diamond of Ghetto Recorders studio in Detroit, Michigan, recorded The Diemakers' first release, Assault All Your Senses, and this latest release, the EP Detroit Recordings. Bands such as The White Stripes, The Sights, and The High Strung have recorded with Diamond. The songs were recorded old-school style with the band together in the same room and laying down drums, bass, and the blazing guitar solos in one take. A warm, rich sound was achieved by recording on analog tape, rather than digitally recording. The band will be going back to Ghetto Recorders in the fall of 2013 to start what will be a full-length album.

Background

Originally from Detroit, Dominic Harris now lives in Chicago. For the past decade, Dominic Harris and Jay Harnish have been playing in bands that have rocked renowned stages throughout the Midwest, including The Double Door (Chicago), The Rave (Milwaukee), The State Theater (South Bend), and The Intersection (Grand Rapids). After working on solo projects, they rejoined forces to bring back hard-hitting, dirty rock-n-roll. Sharon Harris (Dominic's wife) joined the band as the drummer for Detroit Recordings. She brings a Ramones-meets-Joy Division influence into the music. The three share a bond formed from friendship and a shared musical passion.

The first release Assault All Your Senses is also available on vinyl for those who appreciate the raw, honest sound of vintage records.
